Director's Welcome

Welcome to the 4th edition of India Art Fair, formerly known as India Art Summit.

Over the last few years the fair has seen tremendous growth, and has caught the attention of a diverse global audience, attracting over 170,000 visitors over its first 3 editions. The 4th edition brings together India's vibrant art community and some of the world's finest galleries. This year, 98 exhibitors from 20 countries present a world class showcase of modern and contemporary art in a custom built space at the NSIC Exhibition Grounds in New Delhi.

This year's highlights include many new works being displayed for the first time, an impressive line-up of Indian and European modern masters & contemporaries, promising debuts by emerging artists, and solo projects showcasing contemporary artists of International repute. Returning this year are over 40 of India's best galleries that will represent the exciting breadth of modern and contemporary Indian art. First time international exhibitors this year include some of the most influential galleries from Europe, the Middle East and South Africa.

The Speakers' Forum will feature 54 world renowned curators, critics, artists, and collectors. The sessions, which are free to attend, are curated by our academic partners: Asia Art Archive (Hong Kong), and School of Arts and Aesthetics at Jawahar Lal Nehru University (Delhi).

Visitors will also be able to explore the fair through a number of customised tours, browse the vast range of art publications at the Art Book Store, and experience the Video Lounge and Public Art Projects. We are also proud to have developed an extensive collateral events programme around the fair, hosted by the city's prominent art institutions, galleries, and private museums; making New Delhi an exciting cultural destination for the duration of the fair.

Together with my partners Will Ramsay and Sandy Angus, I would like to thank all our participating galleries, partners and sponsors for being a part of the fourth edition of India Art Fair. I am delighted to present another edition of this landmark initiative and I hope this art fair will be a truly memorable experience for us all.

ABSOLUT BHARTI KHER

ABSOLUT, one of the world's most iconic brands is set apart by its collaborations with unique artistic minds. Bharti Kher joins an illustrious global group to have been inspired by the brand's unorthodox outlook towards the very best in art. Her exclusive installation for ABSOLUT uses the 'bindi' as a metaphor for the third eye and its constant focus on perfection, creating something truly ABSOLUT.

Speakers' Forum

Thursday, 26th January 2012

2:00 pm - 3:30 pm

Session 1

Topic : The Postcolonial and the Curatorial

Speakers : Chaitanya Sambrani, Senior Lecturer, Art Theory, ANU School of Art, Research School of Humanities and the Arts, The Australian National University, Canberra
Gayatri Sinha, Independent Critic & Curator
Grant Watson, Senior Curator and Research Associate, Institute of International Visual Arts, London

Moderator : Parul Dave Mukherji, Professor & Dean, School of Arts & Aesthetics, JNU, Delhi

Postcolonialism was first articulated as a radical concept in literary studies around 1980s following the impact of Edward Said's Orientalism. While art practice from this period compellingly addressed many postcolonial concerns challenging the hegemony of the Euro-American art institutions, the postcolonial entered into international curatorial practice quite late by the last years of the 20th century (Johannesburg Biennale, 1997). In his context, Documenta 11 in 2002 was a landmark event when its artistic director, Ockui Enwezor, drew attention to postcolonial politics of representation via race and identity politics. Of late, when increased presence of globalization has forced a rethink on cultural difference and national identities in the current era of proliferating migration of people, goods and images, has postcolonialism become a passé discourse or does it still animate curatorial imagination? This has also been a moment when insularity of the art world from the concerns of the 'world out there' was challenged. Can the term 'curatorial' be expanded to traverse the wider world shaped by asymmetrical power relationships around class, race, gender and sexuality engendered by the current phase of globalization? Some leading theoreticians of cultural difference and curators are invited to reflect on the postcolonial inflection on contemporary curatorial practices and the current interface between curatorial frameworks and art practice.

4:00 pm - 5:30 pm

Session 2

Topic : Platforms for Regional Engagement: creativity, politics and emergent curatorial frameworks

Speakers : Yusaku Imamura, Director, Tokyo Wonder Site & Counselor on Special Issue to the Governor, Tokyo Metropolitan Government
Natalie King, Director, Utopia @Asialink, Australia
Khairuddin Hori, Senior Curator, Singapore Art Museum
Tasneem Mehta, Director, Bhau Daji Lad Museum, Mumbai

Moderator : Deeksha Nath, Curator, Delhi

Moving beyond the conventional biennale framework, how can we cultivate spaces for meaningful engagement across the Asia Pacific region? What kind of regional models are genuinely inclusive and collaborative? Drawing on a series of case studies and provocations, panelists will discuss various platforms from 2012 Gwangju Biennale's curatorium, Tokyo Wonder Site's integrated exhibition and residency program, Singapore Biennale's regional position and the new, peripatetic initiative Utopia in order to speculate on cross-cultural collaborations. The talks will be provocative, generating audience discussion and debate including India's new Kochi-Muziris Biennale 2012 and the role of public institutions in facilitating connectivity.

6:00 pm - 7:30 pm

Anthony Korner, Publisher, Artforum International Magazine
Alka Pande, Consultant Arts Advisor and Curator of the Visual Arts Gallery, India Habitat Centre

Moderator : Gayatri Sinha, Independent Critic & Curator

In recent years trade in creative economy products has increased greatly because of rising world demand for goods and services that link cultural heritage, arts, creative services and design to modern business and technology. But the challenges are to leverage these creative capacities and attract private investment. While social sector activities of the Indian corporate sector are widely recognized, private support extended to arts is yet to receive acknowledgement in India. The session will provide a forum for discussion on role, implications and prerequisites of private support to arts in all its facets including art education, infrastructure, promotion and marketing initiatives. The session would also bring to the fore the economic impact and growth potential of the Art and Culture sector and how the sector can contribute in creating jobs and economic growth.

Speakers' Forum

Friday, 27th January 2012

12:00 pm - 1:30 pm

Session 4

Topic : European Reception of Contemporary Indian Art

Speakers : Ranjit Hoskote, Cultural theorist, poet, and independent curator
Sophie Duplaix, Chief Curator, Centre Pompidou
Holly Brackenbury, Director, Indian Art, Sotheby's, London
Peter Nagy, Director, Nature Morte

Moderator : Deepak Ananth, Art Historian & Faculty Ecole des Beaux Arts, Caen, Normandy

In keeping with the distinct profiles of the participants in this panel – Sophie Duplaix is a curator at the Centre Pompidou, Ranjit Hoskote is an independent curator and writer, Peter Nagy is the founder of one of the important private galleries in India and Holly Brackenbury heads the department of Indian art at Sotheby's, one of the leading auction houses in the world - the title of this panel discussion 'European Reception of Contemporary Indian Art' is perhaps more usefully approached keeping in mind the reception(s) – in the plural - that contemporary Indian art has met according to the specific agendas and contexts framing its exhibitions in Europe. So, for example, the section on Bombay in Tate Modern's 'Century City' exhibition (curated by Geeta Kapur and Ashish Radhyadaksha) evidently had a different focus from the Serpentine Gallery's exhibition 'Indian Highway', just as the recent exhibition 'Paris, Delhi, Bombay' at the Centre Pompidou is different in approach from 'Indian Summer' that was co-curated by Deepak Ananth for the Ecole des Beaux-Arts in 2005. Ranjit Hoskote will doubtless have much to say about the criteria he had in mind when he was asked to curate the Indian section at the last Venice Biennale and Peter Nagy is well placed to comment on the evolving reception of Indian art, given the international visibility of a number of artists represented by his gallery. Holly Brackenbury would be in a position to provide an overview of the changing profile of the collector in view of the inroads that Sotheby's has made in the market for Indian art – first in India itself and then abroad. The contexts of presentation of contemporary Indian art have a bearing on its reception (there are other factors at play, of course). Questions about the continuing validity (or not) of showcasing works whose sole common denominator is that they are made by artists who share the same nationality is something that could come up for discussion and whether it is on such occasions that the vexed notion of 'influence' rears its head. The difference between government sponsored exhibitions abroad (often undertaken as part of a 'festival' ostensibly celebrating all things Indian but usually framed by a political agenda) and initiatives taken by museums in Europe to show Indian art is a related topic that could be brought up.

Suzanne Cotter, Curator, Guggenheim Abu Dhabi Project, Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation

Moderator : Kavita Singh, Associate Professor, School of Arts & Aesthetics, JNU

Speakers' Forum

Over the past decade, the Arab world has emerged as a node in the global art network. Growing wealth in the oil-rich states supported an extensive art infrastructure, including art fairs, art collections, museums and biennales. At the same time, the less wealthy Arab regions in northern Africa and the Levant remain centres of artistic production and political and intellectual ferment. What is the present and likely future of art in the Arab world? Will changes there have an impact India? Two eminent speakers – the former director of the Sharjah Biennale and the curator for the Guggenheim, Abu Dhabi discuss a world that the Indian art scene knows little about, but which is of vital interest.

Speakers' Forum

Over the past twenty years, transnational contemporary art collaborations between India and foreign countries have flourished primarily through the market, and through trade events such as the India Art Fair. Yet there are equally powerful opportunities for Indian and foreign institutions and museums to step up their presence in this field, to look beyond their nation's borders as they consider future programming needs and desires. This panel discussion spins off from an Asia Society conference held in June 2011, when an eminent group of American and Indian cultural professionals convened in New Delhi to develop projects together, to share best practices and expertise. Among the topics to be addressed will be the ethics of collaboration, as well as the logistical hurdles confronted by transnational arts collaborators today.

Speakers : Anton Vidokle, Artist, Curator and Founder of E-Flux
Daniela Zyman, Chief Curator of Thyssen-Bornemisza Art Contemporary, Vienna
Ravi Sundaram, Senior Fellow, Centre for the Study of Developing Societies, Delhi

Moderator : Raqs Media Collective

This panel will try and live the paradox of trying to simultaneously describe the position and velocity of contemporaneity, especially in the arts. Inhabiting this paradox consists in coming face to face with the Janus faced nature of the present character of the art world. On the one hand, contemporary art is challenged by the instability of the present moment, where every interpretative move seems 'already too late for now', on the other hand, contemporary art is besieged by the tendencies that seek to retrieve art as a timeless practice abstracted from the pressure of today's world. Caught between these two pulls, is the contemporary in contemporary art under peril? Or, is this a time for new opportunities to expand the horizon of what is on the anvil for practice?

Followed by a film "Through the Eyes of a Painter", introduced by Shri Ashok Vajpeyi, Chairman, Lalit Kala Akademi

A film written, directed and filmed by M. F. Husain, the famous Indian painter. This critically acclaimed film was produced by The Films Division of Government of India in 1967 (Runtime: 18 mins)

IF MAN DIDN'T NEED
LUXURY HE WOULD NEVER HAVE INVENTED FIRE.

Desire is the fuel that powers all human progress.

It was desire that made early man crave a finer dining experience. It is desire that makes us want more than it takes to survive.

And today, it is desire that is driving millions of Indians to go further, dress cooler and drive better.

In just November 2010 for instance, 101 BMWs were bought in Aurangabad alone. And 170 private jets will be delivered in India next year. Making it the fourth-largest luxury jet market in the world.

These are important signs. They announce the arrival of a generation hungry for new, refined lifestyle experiences with the purchasing power of the unapologetically ambitious.

At Condé Nast India, we've been equally obsessive about capturing this rarefied atmosphere.

It's absolutely necessary for instance, that our paper is imported from Finland.

Or that we go to the remotest corners of the planet with the world's leading photographers to shoot the likes of Victoria Beckham, Cindy Crawford and Aishwarya Rai.

And have Richard Quest, Amitav Ghosh and Fatima Bhutto contribute with their pens.

Which probably explains why over one million affluent Indians spend their expensive time on our multimedia platform.

Why Vogue India has over 2,50,000 Facebook fans. Why we get a certified, third party audit done on a print run of 50,000 copies for Vogue and 30,000 copies for GQ, every month.

And most importantly, why a majority of our 280+ advertisers entrust up to 70% of their advertising spends with us.

But isn't all this a bit over indulgent, you may well ask? Well, to be honest, so was fire.

CONDÉ NAST INDIA
The necessity of luxury
